

Micronesian conceptions of home and gender in Chuuk and the US - 11

Sonsorolese people in motion and the implications on culture and identity - 19

Invisible belongings: Carolinian practices of personhood and space as moral principles - 28

04 Explorations into Micronesian mobility: Transforming family and home across borders – an introduction

Rebecca Hofmann & Dominik Schieder

11 Micronesian conceptions of home and gender in Chuuk and the US: Between the presence of absent islanders and island imaginaries abroad

Josealyn Eria, Rebecca Hofmann and Sarah A. Smith

19 “Deep in their hearts they still wanna come back”. Sonsorolese people in motion and the implications on culture and identity

Stephanie Walda-Mandel

28 Invisible belongings: Carolinian practices of personhood and space as moral principles

Susanne Kuehling

35 Adopting micronesians children across international borders

Gonzaga Puas

40 Book review: ‘There is no place like home’. Migration and cultural identity of the Sonsorolese, Micronesia

Rebecca Hofmann

42 Book review: An island world vanishes into the ocean

Hermann Mückler

44 Pacific Geographies’ photos: Impressions from a fieldtrip to Vanuatu in the frame of the Horizon 2020 RISE project „FALAH” on family farming, lifestyle and health in August/September 2022

Matthias Kowasch